McCarthy Insists Eisenhower 'Playing With Stacked Deck' In Agreeing To Big 4 Talks

WASHINGTON, June 16 (P)—Sen. McCarthy accused President Eisenhower today of making a "tragic blunder" in agreeing to Big Four talks with Russia, but other senators expressed confidence in the President's policy for world peace.

The Wisconsin Republican told the Senate, "The administration is fashioning the free world's worst defeat since the end of the second World War."

His assessment of the situation was challenged promptly by Sen. Knowland of California, the Republican floor leader; Sen. Bender (R-Ohio) and others.

Support Of All

Sen. Mansfield of Montana, a Democrat, said Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles should have the support of all Americans so they can negotiate at Geneva next month with "strength and conviction."

McCarthy asserted the Soviet government has "an unblemished record of not keeping a single agreement that it was to its advantage to break." He said that as he sees it Eisenhower "has agreed to play with a stacked deck."

What the United States ought to do, McCarthy said, is:

"Announce to the Kremlin leaders that we have decided to be more specific about the Geneva agenda."

Would Limit Talks

"Advise them that we are prepared to talk about the liberation of the countries now held captive by Communists—and nothing else."

"Advise them that there will be no discussion of neutrality for Germany, no discussion about a ceasefire in the Formosa Straits, no discussion about paring down the nuclear arms superiority the free world now enjoys."

There have been times when Knowland disagreed with Eisenhower's foreign policy. But Knowland told McCarthy today he is "not willing to take the defeatist position" he said the Wisconsin senator had taken.

Peron Claims Armed Rebellion Beaten Down; Casualties Heavy

Leader Backs Andrews In Ouster Threat

HARRISBURG, June 16 (P)—Gov. Leader today endorsed a stand taken by Speaker H. G. Andrews (D-Cambria) to expel from the party caucus any House Democrat who turns in against the classified income tax.

At the same time, he anticipated rank-and-file union workers would join statewide labor leaders in backing the 411 million dollar levy once they "understood" its nature. Andrews, in a television appearance Tuesday night, said he would seek caucus expulsion of House Democrats who vote against the income tax in a showdown scheduled for after June 27.

Has Right To Act

"I think Andrews has sufficient stature in the government and party that he has every right to do what he did," Leader told his weekly news conference.

"I shall back up the leadership of both houses, including Mr. Andrews, after they jointly reach a decision on any matter just as they have backed me up..."

A group of anti-income tax House Democrats, including Reps. Daniel A. Verona and Matt S. Anderson of Allegheny County, have dared Andrews to oust them from the caucus.

Asked specifically how he felt about such unions as the CIO-United Steelworkers' Homestead Local who have come out against the income levy, he declared:

"Obviously, it would be impossible to discuss the tax problem with all of the local unions... there are still some, I suppose, who don't understand it (the income tax)."

Increase In Limit

In another development, Leader disclosed to newsmen he believes that an increase in the 330 million dollar borrowing capacity of the General State Authority is almost inevitable to meet huge construction requests.

"While I'm not especially happy to increase it, I don't think we can avoid it," he declared.

The governor also threw his support behind a plan to return to the state 75 per cent of truck overloading fines collected by municipalities.

"There's some justification for a portion of those fines be returned to the state," he said. "A great deal of that policing is done by state police at considerable cost to the Commonwealth."

The plan is part of House-passed legislation to increase the weight ceilings of commonly used trucks from 45,000 to 60,000 pounds. The measure, as amended by the Senate, is "getting closer" to the type he would like to sign, said Leader.

Comments On Alert

On yesterday's air raid alert, Leader said local municipalities will be rated on the basis of their Civil Defense performance.

"If local officials are not satisfied, then state headquarters will not be satisfied," he said. "It then will be our responsibility to replace those with low ratings."

Last Of Quad Baby Boys Dies

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 16 (P)—The last of the quadruplets born yesterday to a New Haven woman died this afternoon.

Two of the four boys died last night, seven hours after they were born. A third died shortly before 2 a.m.

The 39-year-old mother, Mrs. Kenneth Barnes, was reported in fair condition at St. Raphael's Hospital.

STRIKING WORKERS WAVE and cheer in Buenos Aires as they march to the center of the city bearing banners and an effigy of a cardinal (right). The strike, by tens of thousands of persons, was inspired by the Argentine government to demonstrate support for President Juan Peron's anti-clerical campaign. Msgr. Manuel Tato, acting Roman Catholic Archbishop of Buenos Aires, and Msgr. Ramon Carlos Novoa were arrested and expelled from the country, charged with inciting disorders and rioting.

Argentine Government Heads Excommunicated By Vatican

VATICAN CITY, June 13 (P)—The Roman Catholic Church excommunicated the rulers of Argentina today in a historic action quickly followed by revolution there.

Growing friction between church and state climaxed by arrests of priests and expulsion of a bishop preceded the drastic step.

Senate Passes Extension Of Draft Law

WASHINGTON, June 16 (P)—The Senate tonight passed by voice vote, with little debate, a four-year extension of the regular military draft and a two-year extension of the special doctors' draft.

Both measures expire at the end of this month. Tonight's action was a surprise move, decided on in an apparent agreement between Republican and Democratic leaders.

It turned down pleas of the Eisenhower administration that the Senate tie the draft bills into a single package with the administration's plan for a four-fold increase in the active military reserves.

Reserve Bill Stalled

Chairman Russell (D-Ga.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee has opposed action on the reserve bill until it clears the House. The reserve bill has been stalled there for weeks.

Extension of the regular draft already has passed the House and the bill now goes back there for action on minor Senate amendments. The controversial doctors' draft bill is still pending in the House.

The regular draft permits the induction of men from 18 to 26 years for 24 months active duty. The doctors' draft bill sets up special provision for calling physicians, dentists and medical specialists into military service.

Doctor Wanted

NEW YORK, June 16 (P)—There's a job open for a doctor. The pay's good—but the job is in Greenland. The New York State Employment service, acting as an employment agent for an unidentified agency, says the pay will be $467 a week for an eight-month contract.

War Captives Accountable For Actions

EMERGENCY PRESS HEADQUARTERS, operation Alert, June 16 (P)—American war prisoners who chose to stay in Communist China after the Korean War will be held accountable, if they now return home, "for any wrongful act" they may have committed.

The U. S. government made this clear today in announcing it will arrange for a return to the United States of any of the 21 prisoners who changes his mind about communism and arranges to present himself to American authorities.

There has never been any indication, however, whether Red rulers would release former POWs who once apparently chose communism but now want to reject it.

The American statement of policy on the ticklish issue followed reports that at least two—and perhaps eight—of the former POWs have had enough of Red China and want to come home.

The statement was issued jointly by the White House and the State, Defense and Justice departments. It was released from "emergency" government headquarters.

Altogether, 23 American POWs refused to return to U. S. control after the Korean armistice. Two of them, Cpl. Edward S. Dickinson of Cracker's Neck, Va., and Cpl. Claude J. Batchelor of Kernit, Texas, changed their minds while under neutral custody during a "waiting period."

Both Dickinson and Batchelor, after their return to American custody, were convicted by court-martial of collaborating with the enemy and were sentenced to prison—10 years for Dickinson and 20 years for Batchelor.

Today's pronouncement was unprecedented in recent history in that it struck Catholic rulers of an almost solidly Roman Catholic country.

With the pronouncement, Peron and members of his government fell under the same church penalty that in the past struck Napoleon; Henry IV, Emperor of Germany; and, more recently, the Communist rulers of Hungary and Yugoslavia.

Rich Uranium Specimens Found

ALBANY, N. Y., June 16 (P)—Three amateur prospectors have found uranium ore in Saratoga County, specimens of which test "as rich as anything" discovered to date in North America, the state geologist said tonight.

Dr. John G. Broughton added, however, that the extent and quality of deposits along the east shore of the Sacandaga Reservoir were not yet known.

The finds, he said, were "sufficient to warrant spending more time and money to investigate further." He said some of the specimens had thrown the needle on a Geiger counter dial past the maximum reading.

UNIVERSITY PARK, June 16 (P)—Walter S. Shearer, Sinking Spring, today was elected president of the Pennsylvania State Poultry Federation at the group's annual meeting here.

Airliner Crash Kills 14, Including American Writer

ASUNCION, Paraguay, June 16 (P)—U. S. correspondent John Graham Dowling and 13 other persons were killed or left unaccounted for in the crash of a Panair do Brasil airliner in a fog early today. Only 10 aboard are known to have survived.

The four-engine Constellation, nearing the end of a 6,800-mile flight from London to Buenos Aires, cracked up and exploded at the village of Cuatro Mojones shortly before 2 a.m. It apparently was letting down for its landing at Asuncion, in the Paraguay River valley only five miles away.

Enroute To Argentina
Dowling, 41, was on the way from Sao Paulo, Brazil, to Buenos Aires, where he was Time magazine's bureau chief. The veteran newsman was the son of a theatrical couple, actor Eddie Dowling and comedienne Raye Dooley Dowling.

Dowling was one of 14 passengers.

Navy, Air Force Raid Main Square, Government House

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, June 16 (P)—Armed revolt flashed out against President Juan Peron today and bombs rained on the Government House area in two air raids. Tonight the President declared the rebellion had been put down.

"The fight has finished," Peron announced in a broadcast. "The planes as usual fled to Uruguay."

Blaming the navy for the outbreak, Peron acknowledged that some points of resistance remained to be quelled. He said these were minor.

The rebellion broke out a few hours after the Vatican excommunicated Peron and his aides at the height of his feud with the Roman Catholic Church.

Raid Surprises Hundreds

One of the air raids caught hundreds of workers who had rallied to the Plaza de Mayo, main square in the city, to support the President with their voices as army tanks moved in.

Casualties were heavy. Peron said, "We will never forgive the infamy of our enemies" whom he blamed for the numerous dead and wounded.

The main culprits, he declared, had been detained. He urged the people to remain calm.

The government radio said the situation throughout the republic was normal.

Praises Army

Speaking in a voice charged with emotion, Peron praised the Argentine army, officers and conscripts, who rallied to his cause. But he said rebels in the armed forces were "traitors and cowards."

Peron spoke for seven minutes from the headquarters of his army command, presumably in the Ministry of War.

After he spoke the state radio announced he had declared a state of siege and had called Congress to meet tonight to declare martial law.

A state of siege and martial law would cancel more of the civil liberties than the state of internal war declared by Peron during another revolt in 1951 and never revoked.

Rebel Planes Land

Just before Peron's broadcast newsmen at Carrasco, airport near Montevideo in nearby Uruguay, saw 20 Argentine rebel planes land there.

Navy bombers and fighters, as well as jet fighters from the Argentine air force, were among them. A refugee officer said the revolt failed because the army did not join in though some army units had promised support.

The revolt was signalled just before noon when a wave of four to six fighter planes attacked Government House and the nearby area. About 2½ hours after the attack the government indicated the revolt was being crushed.

Then shortly after 3 p. m. a wave of light bombers and fighter planes carrying bombs renewed the attack.

Dozen Bombs Fall

Within eight minutes the general area around Government House (Casa Rosada) at least a dozen bombs fell, and enormous billows of black smoke rose from the vicinity of the Plaza de Mayo, in front of the government headquarters containing the President's office.

The casualties must have been numerous, since the area includes many public and official buildings. The National Cathedral is nearby.

Airlines immediately were besieged by tourists seeking alternate passage. But they, too, have long been booked solid and had little to offer.

Foreign Ships Not Affected
Foreign flag ships were not affected by the tieup. However, Britain has its own shipping strike and some of its big passenger ships, including the Queen Mary, already have been tied up there.

Four unions were involved in the East and Gulf Coast tieup. The chief issue was unemployment insurance for their 33,000 members. Pacemaker in the negotiations and work stoppage was Joseph Curran's tough, strike-seasoned CIO National Maritime Union.

Rosario Reported Held By Rebels
MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, June 16 (P)—Listeners said tonight they had overheard the Argentine federal police radio hookup transmit a report that Rosario, second largest Argentine city, was still held by rebels.

The listeners said the federal police detachment at Rosario asked for instructions from headquarters in Buenos Aires. The detachment said the Rosario rebels had refused to surrender.

West Adopts Cautious Hope Toward Russia

NEW YORK, June 16 (P)—The West is going into the four-power "summit" meeting with Russia in the cautious hope that there may be some substance to the Soviet's expressed desire for peace.

The Western foreign ministers believe there is some chance that recent Russian moves may not have been entirely propaganda, otherwise they would not have consented to the Geneva session.

Their attitude is based on a careful study of Russia's position, economic and political.

This was learned tonight following the first of two days of conferences by the United States, British and French foreign ministers.

The session, at Wave Hill, an estate overlooking the Hudson River, was attended by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Harold MacMillan and French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay.

They will meet with Russian Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov in San Francisco Monday to arrange procedure for the chiefs of state parley in Geneva starting July 18.

Boy Quizzed In Slayings

WASHINGTON, June 16 (P)—Police cross-examined an 18-year-old boy today about the 14-shot slaying of two pretty schoolgirls in a suburban picnic grounds yesterday.

Detective Sgt. Richard Pearson said the boy, who has been given one lie detector test and faces another, placed himself at the scene of the crime near the University of Maryland but denied any part in it.

He was described by Pearson as a disappointed suitor of Michael Ann Ryan, 14, one of the slain girls.

Michael Ann was shot three times as she walked through the park at Lane Manor, Md., on the way to Northwestern High School. Eleven more bullets killed her companion, 16-year-old Nancy Marie Shomette. There was no evidence of a sexual attack.

Hope Abandoned For 13 British Seamen After Exploding Torpedo Sinks Submarine

PORTLAND, England, June 16 (P)—Explosion of a practice torpedo tore open the front end of the British submarine Sidon in Portland's harbor today and sank her with 13 officers and men. All hope for the 13 was abandoned tonight.

For seven hours Royal Navy rescue experts worked in an effort to find any who might have survived both the blast and the engulfing waters 36 feet down. Then they gave up. There were no signs of life aboard.

Seven Crewmen Escape

Seven other crewmen escaped with slight injuries seconds after the explosion in the starboard torpedo room tore apart the forward section of the 1,000-ton craft, sent yellow smoke billowing from the conning tower and rocked this south coast naval base. The Sidon was moored at the time alongside the supply ship Maidstone. She was preparing to leave the harbor on torpedo firing exercises.

J. P. L. Thomas, first lord of the admiralty, told the House of Commons in London "an oxygen explosion in a torpedo" caused the blast.

There was a sudden rush of air and smoke through the conning tower hatch," Thomas said. "Survivors started to escape and the captain and other officers and men who were on the bridge of the submarine, as well as officers from HMS Maidstone, entered the submarine to assist in rescue operations."

"As far as my information goes at the moment, I think the loss of life was entirely due to the explosion."

Oxygen is used to propel torpedoes. The practice torpedo did not have a warhead.

Lt. Cmdr. Hugh Verry, the Sidon's commanding officer, said he went below as soon as the explosion occurred, "but I was driven back by choking smoke and debris, which blocked the passage in the seamen's mess deck forward of the wardroom."

Search Abandoned

Leave was granted to all surviving members of the crew. The heart-breaking rescue task was directed by Lt. Cmdr. A. V. Emery. He told of the end of the quest in these words:

"As there are now no signs of life on the sub, operation 'Sub Sank' has been abandoned."

Mock Martial Law Ordered By President

EMERGENCY PRESS HEADQUARTERS, Operation Alert, June 16 (P)—President Eisenhower ordered "martial law" today for a nation pretentendly reeling but recovering from the crippling devastation of nuclear warfare.

In a secret underground Pentagon in the mountains, Eisenhower and his top advisers on security and defense sized up reports of unexpectedly heavy "damage" from yesterday's mock bombings. Then they went over patch-up steps to be taken if this were a real instead of an imaginary crisis.

And in 31 hideouts radiating 300 miles from a Washington in theoretical "shambles," 15,000 uprooted government officials and employees began pumping out theoretical orders designed to put the country back in fighting trim.

Informed Of Revolt
Occasionally, too, this test run for possible things to come was shunted aside for the actual current business of government. Eisenhower, for example, kept posted on riot and revolt in Argentina.

Mainly, from the chief executive down through the chain of command, the concern of the moment was the staggering aftermath of yesterday's massive, fictitious enemy air strikes at 61 crucial American cities.

Confronting them were such unprecedented though make-believe problems as what to do about:

Millions of dead and injured and millions more in immediate need of shelter, food, and funds.

Tremendous chunks ripped from the nation's network of war industries—steel, aluminum, power and electronics plants, along with plane and tank and munitions factories.

Multitude Of Problems
Water supplies, crops and people duster by radioactive fallout sucked up from the crumbled remnants of New York, Chicago, San Francisco, Detroit and other hydrogen-bombed cities.

A need for quick decisions on rationing, priorities, and price, wage and manpower controls.

Even before the President huddled at the emergency Pentagon with members of his National Security Council, he decided a mock state of martial law was "essential to the national interest" until Congress could "come into session and normal channels of government control and action be re-established."

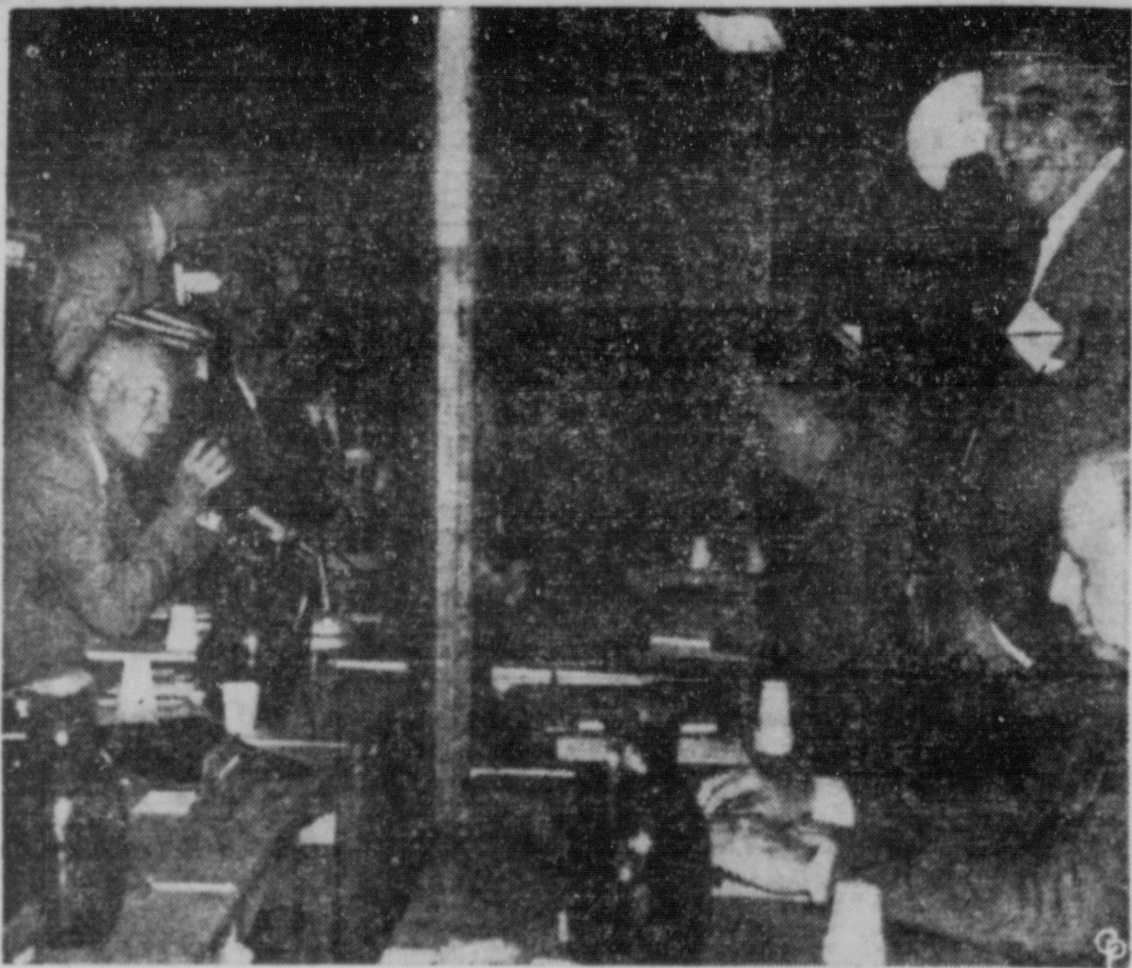

In an actual emergency, a statement here said, the chief executive would keep close contact with the governors so that martial law could be modified "as conditions warranted."

WHILE 61 KEY CITIES were theoretically being hit by hydrogen bombs, President Eisenhower broadcast a message of reassurance from a tent at the secret Presidential relocation center, somewhere "within 300 miles of Washington." Strikers Bar Sailing Of Giant Liner

LONDON, June 16 (P)—Striking seamen devised plans tonight to extend their spreading wildcat walkout to the Queen Elizabeth and freeze that giant liner along with her sister ship, the Queen Mary, in Southampton.

The 81,273-ton Queen Mary failed to sail for New York when 500 of her crewmen, mostly of the catering staff, filed down the gangway.

Her 1,175 angry and bewildered New York passengers including many Americans, returned by train to London's Waterloo Station this morning. Many were short of funds. Others dragged tired, crying children with them. And all were worried about hotel accommodations.

Airliners, with every seat booked, flew out some of the passengers. This only made a dent in the problem. The backlog of stranded tourists grew bigger. Six other transatlantic liners were tied up at Liverpool.

now on the high seas, was steaming toward Southampton. She is due to reach that troubled port Monday.

The strikers failed last week to halt the sailing of the Elizabeth, world's largest passenger liner, for New York. They said this would not happen again.

The strikers are demanding a guaranteed 48-hour week, increased shore subsistence and in some cases improved living conditions aboard their ships. They have adopted a resolution of "no confidence" in the National Union of Seamen, which is opposing the walkout.

Britain's share of transatlantic ship travel now has been cut to a trickle. This lucrative dollar-earning industry will almost completely halt if the Queen Elizabeth is struck.

Cadillac

First of Its Happy Owners!

The Cadillac you see in the picture has just started out on Mission Number One: to make its first owner and his family members of the happiest motoring fraternity in the world—for as long as they wish.

And then it will be ready for Mission Number Two: to do the same thing for its second owner. And so on, in turn, for its third owner and its fourth—and, mayhap, for an almost indefinite number of others.

In fact, a Cadillac just about refuses to give up, if it is treated fairly and driven with common sense. Even after the body has ceased to exist, the heart of a Cadillac often beats on.

You can see those tough old engines and chassis everywhere. Maybe you'll see one supplying the power for a country sawmill... or pulling a plow... or serving as a truck, with an improvised body. Give it regular, decent care—and a Cadillac chassis is all but indestructible from normal usage.

Of course, as the purchaser of a new Cadillac, you would not expect to utilize more than a minor portion of this ability to serve. You would look forward to changing models from time to time, in order to enjoy the benefits of styling and engineering advancements.

But what carefree and satisfying performance this quality foretells for the period during which you would expect to keep the car! It is the world's best guarantee of the first owner's satisfaction.

All this, of course, is just one more solid reason for owning a Cadillac—in addition to such obvious reasons as beauty and luxury and pride of ownership.

Better come in today—and be the first of a Cadillac's proud and happy owners.

Firemen's Convention Opens This Morning At High School

Full Day Of Activity Scheduled

THE 58th ANNUAL convention of the Four County Firemen's Assn., will get under way today at 10 a.m. in the Stroudsburg High School auditorium.

Millard A. Marsh, Stroudsburg fire chief and president of the association will preside. Following the usual opening exercises and transaction of routine business, the memorial services will be held.

This part of the program takes place at 11 a.m. Rev. Robert H. Krauss, of Hellertown, chaplain, will be in charge. Rev. Francis Barrett, of St. Matthew's R. C. church, will take part in place of Rev. Harold G. Durkin, who is away from town. The memorial exercises are open to the general public.

Election of officers and selection of place for holding the 1956 session will be another important piece of business for the convention.

Banquet Tonight

There are 265 reservations for the annual banquet at the auditorium of George N. Kemp Post, 346, American Legion, at 6 p.m. Ladies will be guests at the dinner. Frank S. LaBar will be toastmaster. The guest speaker is Wilbur G. Warner, postmaster at Lehigh, well known in this community. Music for dancing and a floor show will also be on the program.

Saturday is the big day when the parade takes place, starting promptly at 2 p.m. following two blasts of the borough fire alarm. More than 4,000 marchers will be in the eight divisions representing close to 100 units—fire companies, auxiliaries and musical organization. The parade leaves Fifth and Main Sts., Stroudsburg, marches to East Stroudsburg where several streets will be covered and returns to the state bridge to Main St., Stroudsburg, and proceeds to Stroudsburg playground where it will be dismissed. Refreshments will be served there. The reviewing stand will be in front of the former Montgomery-Ward store, Main St.

67 Fire Trucks

Indications point to 67 pieces of fire apparatus being in the parade. The judging of the apparatus for cash prizes takes place on Sarah St., in the fire headquarters area, at 11 a.m.

Motorists are reminded there will be no parking on Main St., Stroudsburg, Saturday from noon until the parade has passed. The same conditions will prevail along the line of march in East Stroudsburg.

Archie S. Rundle, general chairman, and his assistants held their final meeting last night to check on details.

The local committee has expressed deep appreciation of merchants and others who have placed decorations at their places of business for the two-day event.

TWO DEEDS filed yesterday at the office of Floyd Butz, county register and recorder, showed these property transfers:

Hoffner Given $112,291 For Imprisonment

NEW YORK, June 16 (AP)—A Court of Claims judge awarded $112,291 today to 41-year-old Louis Hoffner as compensation for his 12-year imprisonment on a murder conviction that was set aside in 1952.

Hoffner, a bespectacled bachelor, thanked Judge Frederick A. Young, saying:

"I feel very good that it's all over."

"I've got my freedom, that's the main thing," he told reporters.

Tragic Miscarriage
Judge Young called Hoffner's original conviction "a tragic miscarriage of justice."

Hoffner was sentenced to life imprisonment for the still-unresolved slaying of a Queens bartender in 1940.

A Queens County judge set aside the conviction after a five-year campaign headed by Edward J. Mowery, staff writer of the New York World-Telegram & Sun.

The campaign brought disclosure of minutes of a police lineup at which the state's star witness failed to identify Hoffner—although he did so later in court.

Gas Escaping From Big Well Burns Seven

RENOVO, Pa., June 16 (AP)—Gas escaping from a natural gas well near here exploded today injuring at least seven men, one seriously. Dr. John Dwyer, Renovo, said he treated "seven or nine men," some of whom were admitted to the Renovo Hospital.

Francis Gavin, 32, of Andover, N. Y., an employee of the Otis Eastern Co., pipe installation firm, suffered first, second and third degree burns of the entire body. His condition was listed as very serious.

The well, gushing out the heavier than air gas at a rate of 150,000,000 cubic feet a day, burst into flames and was reported still burning.

The capping valve of the well blew off early today spreading the highly flammable gas over a vast area of Potter County.

Hospital 30 Miles Away
The well was brought in on state-owned land in Potter County last Friday by the New York State Natural Gas Corp., Pittsburgh.

The injured men were brought to the hospital in company cars that sped along winding mountain roads for 30 miles.

"When the well caught fire I began to run. All I knew was that I had to get out of there," Cooper said.

Other witnesses said the well is now shooting a 25-foot thick column of flame 125 feet into the air.

State Okays Car Insurance Rate Changes

HARRISBURG, June 16 (AP)—Francis R. Smith, state insurance commissioner, today approved a $130,000 decrease in automobile collision insurance, effective June 20.

The average statewide reduction is 2 per cent for $50 deductible coverage and 4 per cent on $100 deductible coverage.

The changes are by territories throughout the state, some being increased, some decreased and some remaining the same.

Smith also disclosed that collision premiums for family automobiles involving women operators under 25 years of age but with no men operators under that age are reduced 13 per cent where the young woman is neither the owner nor the principal operator.

A credit of 10 per cent is approved for risks where all drivers under 25 years of age have completed approved school driver education courses.

Another change is a 20 per cent credit for commercial automobiles used by farmers in connection with the operation of their farms.

Club Delegates At Convention

TWO DELEGATES from East Stroudsburg Exchange Club are now attending the State Exchange convention at Bedford Springs.

Fourth Accident In Week Occurs At Curve Near E. W. Hogg Property, Minisink Hills

ROUTE 402 near Minisink Hills may not be a superhighway, but the turnover is getting bigger every week.

At five minutes past midnight yesterday morning a car hit a bank on a curve at the E. W. Hogg property there. The car skidded and overturned.

Nobody Injured
It was the fourth accident at that spot in the past two weeks. No one has been injured in any of the accidents, but the property damage has been pretty sizeable.

Driver of the car which overturned yesterday morning was Woodrow W. Bussenger Jr., 17, of 666 S. Main St., Bangor. Bussenger told Stroudsburg State police his car hit something in the road, started toward the bank, Bussenger said he applied the brakes, the car skidded, hit the bank, then hit a tree, another tree, went on the Hogg property, hit the porch of building there, some shrubs and turned over, police reported.

Damage to the car was estimated at about $700. Damage to the two trees, a stone wall, three porch screens and the shrubs is expected to total about $125, police said.

Tractor-Trailer Crashes
Two weeks ago a large tractor-trailer truck came down the same curve, rolled out of control, smashed into a house owned by Mrs. Hogg and knocked the house three feet off its foundation. No one was injured that time, either.

Mrs. Hogg said two other accidents had occurred at the spot during the two-week interval. No one was hurt in them, either.

Juvenile Delinquency Must Be Everybody's Concern, No Matter Where It Happens To Be

The victims of the juvenile gangsters in the nation's largest city face a decision somewhat comparable to that of all of us where civil defense and a possible H-bomb attack are concerned.

Should they and their families stay where they are and duck for cover, hoping that everything will turn out right, or should they run for the quiet hills?

This is, perhaps, the most frightening commentary of all upon what has come to be called "the problem of juvenile delinquency."

It is all well and good to point out that in New York City, as every place else, the "juvenile delinquents" are only a very small part of our American youth, that the vast majority of our boys and girls are decent and law-abiding and show respect for both parental and governmental law.

But if your name is James O'Farrell, you don't think much of the odds or the matter of percentages. You are a New York City teacher, and you are in a hospital bed. A 15-year-old tough went after you with a knife in your classroom, and stabbed you.

Perhaps, you would decide as this teacher did, "I'm not going to let my wife and children stay in New York any longer." You announce that you're moving them and your home out onto Long Island, and you'll commute daily to your classroom in the city.

If your name is William Blankenship, you've wrestled this all out in your mind and heart before it became James O'Farrell's agonizing decision to make. Your son is dead, slain in a juvenile gang incident. You decided at first to move your family to the quiet hills of Pennsylvania, then you changed your mind and decided to stay on in New York City and help fight juvenile delinquency.

What's the answer? What can be done? Your name isn't James Farrell, or William Blankenship. You don't live in New York City.

It's your problem and your responsibility just the same, no matter who you are or where you live.

Look at yourself, look at your own home. If it is true that "charity begins at home," so does good citizenship and all around morality. So conduct your personal life that it is an example for your children and all of their friends. Teach them the timeless laws of decency and respect—for themselves and everyone else.

Look at yourself in your activities outside of your own home. Are you interested in your children's school? Are you interested in the church? Are you interested in the many community groups which are striving to make this a better place for all boys and girls? More important, do you pitch in? Or are you always "too busy" or "can't be bothered?"

If you have put your own house in order, turn then to your local government and become a lobbyist.

Become a lobbyist for better schools and teachers. Become a lobbyist for more parks, playgrounds and supervised recreational programs for all your community's youth. Become a lobbyist for better breaks for those of our youth who go charging off the straight and narrow and run afoul of the law.

That means more and better trained juvenile court workers, more and better institutions for youth that has gone off the deep end.

And all of this means more money—your tax money.

George Sokolsky Says...

Harry Dexter White Became Master Of United States Treasury's War Work

On February 22, 1943, at 3:25 p. m., according to the Morganthau diaries, a meeting was held at the Treasury at which Daniel Bell, Under Secretary, complained that he was being overloaded by work. Everybody was sympathetic, particularly Harry Dexter White, who agreed that Bell was doing too much. He made this point:

"I think so... I think definitely that that could be facilitated if it were clarified. Where the definite responsibility is not indicated there are always a good many who are not sure just what they have to do. I have never been wholly sure just how much I should initiate..."

So the ball was batted about and it was agreed that something should be put on paper which would so reorganize the Treasury that the Secretary and his Under Secretary would be relieved of some of their burdens. White was to do the re-arranging of functions.

Out of this discussion came a letter dated February 25, 1943, which is most illuminating as it turned over to Harry Dexter White authorities which made him the most powerful man in the Treasury.

"Effective this date, I would like you to take supervision over and assume full responsibility for Treasury's participation in all economic and financial matters (except matters pertaining to depository facilities, transfers of funds, and war expenditures) in connection with the operations of the Army and Navy and the civilian affairs in the foreign areas in which our armed forces are operating or are likely to operate. This will, of course, include general liaison with the State Department, Army and Navy, and other departments or agencies and representatives of foreign governments on these matters.

"In above connection, you will, of course, keep Under Secretary Bell advised with respect to all matters affecting gold, coins, exchange, currency, or rates of exchange. You will also consult with Mr. Paul or Mr. Luford and Mr. Pehle in all matters which come within the jurisdiction of the Foreign Funds Control. OK—H. M. Jr."

Harry Dexter White thus came into an unusually powerful position in the Government with direct relations with the State Department, the Army and the Navy.

The Treasury was, in the war years, in a position to knock down the currencies of other countries and White was particularly interested in the inflation in China and in reducing the value of the British pound beyond anything that the British Eschequer regarded as right. He was in a position to pursue his course with the slightest regard to his superiors who would only hear of his conduct when the State Department complained.

White, who was now Assistant to the Secretary of the Treasury, gives the impression in the diaries of being in charge of organization, of distribution of work, of the man just below the Secretary of the Treasury. It is to be noted that according to the sworn testimony of J. Edgar Hoover, not to mention other sources, Harry Dexter White was serving the Russians. Hoover said in his testimony:

"From November 8, 1945, until July 24, 1946, seven communications went to the White House bearing on espionage activities, wherein Harry Dexter White's name was specifically mentioned."

"During that same period, 2 summaries on Soviet espionage activities went to the Treasury Department and 6 summaries went to the Attorney General on the same subject matter."

But we notice from the material in the Morganthau diaries that White keeps moving forward until we can now fix the date—by February 25, 1943, he is the master of the Treasury in its most important war functions.

His next proposal is for a Bank for Reconstruction and Development of the United and Associated Nations and as one reads his Proposal for a United Nations Bank (mind you, this is in 1943), it is clear that if he were put in charge of this, he would be in absolute control of the economy of the world. He even proposes the establishment of a new international monetary unit, the Unitas, worth $10 U. S. currency in gold, against which the proposed bank was to issue notes.

The plan is a very complicated one, but this question arises: As the United States was at that time the chief possessor of gold in the world, and as the Unitas was to be backed by gold, was this a method of transferring our gold to an international bank?

New York Bay drainage basin can be subdivided into the Passaic River Basin, the Hackensack River Basin, the Raritan River Basin, and the Hudson River tributaries. Of these, the Raritan River Basin is only one which lies wholly within New Jersey. Then there is the Bunnvale Project with 180 square miles of drainage area requiring the construction of a dam at Bunnvale. This would include water from the Musconetcong River, the Black River, the Spruce River, and the north branch of Rockaway Creek, together with the runoff from 64 square miles of the drainage area of the south branch of the Raritan River which could be stored behind the dam.

Much more could be written on this subject but surely enough is indicated to show that there is today no reason whatsoever for the so-called Wallpack Bend Dam on the Delaware.

Yours faithfully,

Peace, Normalcy Spell Indicated For Country

Maybe it's a risky thing to say but I do believe we are in the throes of something closely akin to what used to be known as peace and normalcy.

It's a little hard to tell, for as I think back I can't seem to remember ever actually living through what was duly certified at the time as a spell of peace and normalcy. That desirable state was always on the point of being restored in the not too distant future, barring stupid voting or unforeseen snags.

As a matter of fact, against the background of the last 40 years it may be that "peace and normalcy" is a contradiction in terms. Certainly peace has not been normal during that period and I'd be hard-pressed to say exactly what HAS been normal.

But I remember that at least two phenomena were characteristic of the times that felt sort of normal. One was that a person had to stop and think whether Congress was in session or not. The other was that the newspapers were much engrossed in speculation as to whether the black widow spider or the horned toad would win the death struggle in which they had been dedicated at some remote whistle stop for two or three weeks. (Or maybe it was a wildcat and a moose. There was a lot of hot-weather news stirred up among the dumb animals in those days.)

Well, don't look now but Congress is in session and you'd hardly know it. Maybe the Army-McCarthy hearings last year took all the sap out of the boys by setting a mark for sustained noise and whoopee-do that can't be matched without more effort than it's worth. At any rate the Congressmen have been in there grinding out law and needing one another in such unspectacular fashion that the situation may warrant investigation.

Not that anybody's complaining. The horned toads haven't taken over the papers this summer yet but we have a fair approximation of their marathon contests in the interminable speculation over whether like and Adlai are or are not going to run in '56.

It seems to me that when all the pundits start reading potential Presidential candidates' minds a year ahead of time and can't stop fiddling with the subject, nothing else too alarming can be going on in the world.

There is of course the customary rattling of tanks and cooing of peace doves from the Iron Curtain areas, and every once in a while somebody lets out a yelp about what's happening in the stock market. But these have taken on the quality of background noises, like the summer chatter of crickets and hoot owls. They may be ominous but they no longer alarm.

In short, things have settled down to an uncommonly monotonous humdrum of assorted confusion. Makes a fellow nervous.

Wilson Mizner, sometime playwright, sometime confidence man, said many a witty thing during his lifetime, and Alva Johnston has preserved most of them for posterity in "The Legendary Mizners." He told off one conceited showman, with, "A demitasse cup would fit over your head like a sunbonnet." Of a longnosed, lehabod Cranish character he declared, "He's the only man I know who can take a shower and smoke a cigar at the same time," and, "I'd like to pick him up by the feet and plop a furrow with him." Recalling a Klondike associate who had frozen to death while tying his shoelaces, Mizner mourned, "We had to bury him in a drum."

Mizner's departure from Alaska was speeded by a wisecrack aimed at the governor's wife, who failed to appreciate it entirely. The governor came bounding into view one night hollering, "Catch that scoundrel!" "What did he do?" Mizner wanted to know. "Do?" echoed the governor. "He insulted my wife!" Mizner was properly appalled. "For heaven's sake, how?" he demanded.

Robert S. Allen Reports

Ask That Gruenther Tell On TV His Testimony On Kremlin

Washington, June 17: President Eisenhower has received a difficult request from congressional leaders.

They want him to permit General Alfred Gruenther, commander of NATO, to make a radio address to say publicly what he has told them privately about the "Kremlin rulers' crafty peace campaign and its pitfalls."

Spearheading this backstage effort are bi-partisan leaders of the Senate and House foreign relations committee is particularly Representative James Richards (D. S. C.), chairman of the House committee, and Walter Judd, Minn., ranking Republican member.

Their unusual proposal stems from discussions with Gruenther. Publishable highlights of what the NATO commander told them are:

Russia has a new type long-range submarine that uses "hydrogen peroxide fuel."

The Reds now have atomic artillery comparable to what the U. S. developed several years ago.

A major reason for the Soviets' peace drive is that they are over-extended militarily and economically.

The NATO Council, which determines basic military policy, has approved Gruenther's request to use atomic weapons in the event of a Red attack.

Representative Richards asked, "Can we hold our own against the Kremlin's new peace offensive?"

"I hope so," replied Gruenther. "But the Russians are exerting tremendous efforts to pull us into letting down our guard in one way or another."

To avert this, Representative Judd proposed a nationwide broadcast by Gruenther to "tell the people at least a part of what we know so they will know what the dangers are."

"Would you have any objections to doing that?" asked Richards.

"No," said Gruenther. "But this is a matter that will have to be arranged with the President. I could make such a broadcast only with his permission."

"We understand," declared Judd.

Note: When Representative Frances Bolton (R., O.) asked Gruenther about serving diplomatic relations with the Iron Curtain he answered, "That would be a mistake. It could serve no purpose that I can see."

Boomerang — Senator George Malone (R., Nev.) is being ribbed by colleagues about a disconcerting incident that occurred at a meeting in which he participated. It was a hearing of the Senate

Interior Committee, and Mrs. Rie House, McKeeverville, Nev., complained bitterly about the difficulty of evicting squatters from government land.

"We just don't know what to do; whom to turn to," she exclaimed.

"Why don't you write to your senators?" asked a Committee-man.

"I did," said Mrs. House, "but it did no good."

"You didn't write to me," asserted Malone. "If you had, I might have been able to help you."

"But I did write to you," retorted Mrs. House. "Didn't you read my letter? Someone did, because I got an answer from you. I have it right here with me. Would you like to see it?"

Malone hastily assured the witness he did not doubt her word.

More of the Same — The Navy is stepping up its pace in acquiring atomic submarines.

The new total being sought is eight.

Of this number: One is operational (the NAUTILUS); another is about to be launched (the SEA WOLF); three others have been authorized by Congress; and the Navy has decided to ask for three more of these super-modern craft.

That's one more than the Navy proposed earlier this year.

Its budget called for two additional atomic submarines. But the extraordinary effectiveness displayed by the NAUTILUS in its various tests, plus authoritative reports about Russian atomic development, has induced Navy leaders to ask Congress for still more atomic subs.

This is a complete reversal of Navy attitude only a few years ago.

Then Admiral Hyman G. Rickover, who is largely responsible for construction of the NAUTILUS, was about to be retired. He had been passed over twice as a Captain, and was promoted to Admiral and retained in the Navy to push completion of the NAUTILUS only after vigorous congressional demand led by Representative Melvin Price (D., Ill.), member of the Joint Atomic Committee.

The Navy's unannounced decision to get more atomic subs was disclosed to the Senate Appropriations Committee by Admiral Robert Carney, who is retiring this month as Chief of Naval Operations.

"We're glad to hear that," said Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R., Mass.). "It is a sound decision. In fact, we'd like to know why you propose to continue building conventional-powered submarines."

Water Shortage Problems

—by H. G. Heller

More than 1,000 American communities will have to curtail the use of water this summer. That's the conclusion of an article in the June Nation's Business magazine. It's happened to a degree in the Stroudsburg, a already.

In 1936, few public water plants operated with lower than 20 per cent reserve. The national average was near 40 per cent, which experts say is desirable. Today, some communities have no reserve capacity at all, which means curtailment of water will have to be ordered as hot weather brings increasing demands on water systems.

Outlining the water and sewer needs of the nation, Nation's Business says the backlog already stands at $10,000,000,000. Almost every community is faced with problems caused by inadequate water and sewer facilities.

America must spend $25,330,000,000 in the next ten years to catch up on water and sewer needs. Nation's Business says. Such a program would require an annual expenditure of almost twice the current year's anticipated record sum of $1,347,000,000.

The findings are those of Walter L. Pictou, deputy director of the Water and Sewerage Industry and Utilities Division of the Business and Defense Services Administration, an agency of the U. S. Department of Commerce.

Under the ten-year program, the $25,330,000,000 would go as follows: $10,000,000,000 to make up the large backlog; $6,750,000,000 to offset obsolescence and depreciation, and $8,580,000,000 to keep pace with population growth and increasing per capita use of water.

Municipal water shortages are not due entirely to drought conditions. The U. S. Geological Survey lists three reasons: inadequate water supply, inadequate treatment facilities and inadequate distribution. The study listed 1,072 communities which had to curtail use of public water supplies in some degree—ranging from requests that citizens not wash automobiles nor water their lawns, to penalty fines for those acts.

An example of growth is illustrated in the per capita water use. In 1940, some 82,000,000 persons used an average of 123 gallons of water per day. Now 100,000,000 persons each use 151 gallons. By 1965, public water systems will have to serve 129,000,000 persons, each of whom will require 190 gallons per day.

about Marilyn Monroe?"

Henry Youngman reports that a guy went to a psychiatrist and asked: "Is it all right for me to marry an octopus?"

"Of course not!"

"Cool!" said the finger-snapper. "What tough luck! Now I'm stuck with eight engagement rings!"

From Emily Post's etiquette column in the Daily Mirror: "Dear Mrs. Post: A friend says in Europe it is entirely proper to burp after a meal. That is looked upon as evidence of appreciation, sort of a thank you for a delicious dinner. He also says no one ever excuses him (or her) self for this. Can there be any truth to this?"

Answer: "I think the country of the legend is China. In our country, however, we should make every effort not to offend by 'burping.' If one should unavoidably do so, it is better not to draw further attention to it by apologizing."

Thank you very much, Mrs. (URP!) Post.

Prices Mixed But Average Up Slightly

NEW YORK, June 16 (P) — The stock market edged up to another new record high mark today but had some trouble doing it.

Profit-taking appeared late in the session and continued to the close with enough force to cut back the market's progress considerably.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up only 10 cents at $170.70. It was higher by $1.00 yesterday. The rise today sent the average to another new record high mark, the seventh in the last nine sessions.

What happened in the market was well illustrated by the action of components of the average. The industrials were up 50 cents but the railroads were down 50 cents while the utilities remained unchanged.

Losses, Gains Divided

At the same time there was a fairly even division between gains and losses with 504 issues up and 453 down out of the 1,205 issues traded. There were 93 new highs and 12 new lows for the year touched during the day. Volume amounted to 2,760,000 shares as compared with 2,650,000 shares traded yesterday.

F. L. Jacobs was the day's most active issue off 1/4 at 8 1/2. It traded a total of 96,300 shares including one block of 77,000 shares at 8.

It was followed by Ashland Oil up 1 1/4 at 16 1/2, Bell Aircraft up 1 1/4 at 30 1/2, ACF Brill up 1/4 at 9, and Colorado Fuel & Iron up 1/4 at 26 1/2.

Mandel Bros. the Chicago department store, fell 2 points at 7 1/2. The company disclosed that plans for selling the company had ended unsuccessfully.

Proposal for Split

Columbia Pictures was up 1/4 at 24 1/2 following a proposal for a five-for-four split and declaration of a 30-cent dividend.

Stocks on the American Stock Exchange were mostly higher on volume of 1,040,000 shares as compared with 1,050,000 shares traded yesterday.

The bond market was steady. U. S. government issues in the over the counter market were lower.

Tennessee Board Adopts Gradual Desegregation

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 16 (P) — The State Board of Education today adopted a plan for effecting gradual desegregation in state supported colleges.

The plan, adopted in a special meeting, calls for admission of graduate students of both races to all state colleges in 1955-56. Seniors of all races would be admitted in 1956-57, juniors the next year, and freshmen by 1959-60.

The Board of Education plan, contained in a resolution, marks the first policy action by Tennessee since the Supreme Court issued its desegregation order in May of last year.

The board resolution had no immediate effect on public schools below the college level. However, the board's apparent compliance with the Supreme Court ruling will stand as a statement of policy to local school boards which have been awaiting action on the state level.

Adenauer Puzzles Newsmen With Reference To 'Law'

WASHINGTON, June 16 (P)—West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer has left behind him in Washington a minor politico-scientific mystery.

What is "the law of communicating vessels" to which he referred in a talk here?

There is even some suspicion by the poker-faced Chancellor's obvious amusement at his hearers' mystification—that there isn't any such law of physics; at least, as one physicist put it, "not in the United States."

Adversary Is Same

Adenauer started it all when he told a gathering of newsmen Tuesday "It is important to recognize the fact that in the Atlantic and in the Pacific the adversary is the same."

Let the adversary withdraw strength from one area, Adenauer went on, and it will show up as increased strength in the other. And he concluded:

"In this context certainly the law of communicating vessels is applicable."

A reporter promptly asked that Adenauer, or one of the two chemist-diplomats present, explain the law.

It isn't a chemical law, Adenauer replied with an obvious twinkle, it's a physical law.

Chemists Won't Talk
That gave U. S. Ambassador James B. Conant his cue. "Out of my field," said the onetime president of Harvard University. And German Ambassador Heinz L. Krekele, the other chemist on hand, contributed only a smile and a shrug.

So, with the Chancellor out of town, the question was put today to that great friend of curious Washingtonians, the Library of Congress.

Offhand, the library's available science man couldn't recall any law of that name. But, he added tactfully, scientists use different terms in different countries and maybe the Chancellor was just talking about the easily demonstrated fact that when you connect two vessels containing liquids, the level in each is affected by the level in the other.

Macmillan Sees Progress Toward Formosa Solution

LONDON, June 16 (P)—Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan indicated today Red China and the United States are moving slowly towards negotiating "a peaceful outcome" of the Formosa dispute.

In a cautious statement to the House of Commons, he told of secret discussions which British and Indian envoys have been conducting with leaders of the Peiping regime on the danger-packed problem.

Recently, Macmillan said, there has been "a substantial reduction of hostile action and propaganda" over the future of the prized island and claimed by the Chinese Communist and the Chinese Nationalist governments.

Search For Happiness Finds
Churchmen And Psychiatrists
Reaching Same Conclusions

NEW YORK, June 17 (AP)—Man's long search for understanding of himself—and the secret of happiness—today may be approaching the completion of a great circle.

The search began in religion, now—despite the void that came between the two fields—the paths of both may be converging toward an almost identical discovery.

Evidence of this similarity of findings about the mystery of man's nature has been cropping up repeatedly at recent conferences between theologians and psychiatrists.

Deep psychoanalysis, says Dr. Frederick Hacker, of Beverly Hills, Calif., has been found to reveal "a most unexpected similarity to religious phenomena."

Similar Conclusions

Recent frank discussions between churchmen and psychiatrists some of them held behind closed doors, mention these points on which they have come—by different routes—to like conclusions:

1. That human beings are affected by an influence beyond themselves—a "super ego" psychiatry describes it—that can't be traced either to instincts or past experiences.

2. That both religion and psychiatry find in man the constant interplay of such conflicting drives as life and death, love and aggression, the scientifically understandable impulses and the baffling ones of unknown origin.

3. That psychoanalysis, like religion, finds the root of a person's sense of well-being and self-understanding is in a deep feeling that comes from the inner search, rather than in any mere factual exposure of causes and effects.

Cooperation in Projects

4. That both in religion and psychiatry, the deepest, strongest key to personal fulfillment and happiness stems from one central element—the ability to love others. ("Thy neighbor as thyself.")

Dr. Adelaide M. Johnson of Rochester, Minn., describing reactions to a patient who has gone through profound psychoanalysis, said:

"The patient may feel for the first time that he is implicated in a great enveloping mystery."

"They often say, and they grope for words, 'this must be what the religious leaders mean by 'pure in heart', 'grace', 'faith'."

"Interestingly, the simplest common denominator of feeling we observe at this core... is a realization of a deep capacity for loving."

"This, she added, may be basic both to psychiatrists and theologians in seeking the way of true conquest in life."

Cooperation between churchmen and psychiatrists has been a growing thing lately. Teams made up of specialists in the two spheres frequently work together in clinics and other projects.

A reason for the original breach, in which psychiatry first viewed religion as "mass neurosis," and was in turn denounced as a tool of the devil, was a difference in starting points.

Religion, said theologian Dr. Perry E. Gresham of Bethany College, W.Va., "begins with God," while psychiatry "begins with man." Yet both now seem to reach—from opposite directions—toward kindred revelations about man's makeup.

Behind the old-time feud, said Dr. Hacker, lay a deeper friction between so-called "facts" and "ideals."

But advanced psychiatrists are now aware, he added, that there is no sharp division between facts and ideals, between reason and emotion, or between the rational and unexplainable elements in man.

Extreme Points

The two, he said, are "extreme points of a pendulum swing rather than separate essences."

Can man then hope, by exploring both religion and science, ever to find pure knowledge of himself and the mystery within him? Perhaps not, for as self-seeking man, he can never have pure objectivity outside himself.

Yet, both the psychiatrist and religious monastic pursue comparable courses in trying to free the mind of worldly distractions and blind spots—so life can be seen more clearly.

Home Freezers Available In Two Types

SO YOU'RE thinking about a home freezer? One problem that may bother you is whether to select a chest or upright freezer. Both have their good points and their disadvantages, says Margaret Mae Laren, extension home economist. It's a good idea to look over both types before you buy.

The chest-type freezer takes more floor space than an upright. The upright usually costs a little more, too, but food is easier to reach. The upright type may have to be defrosted more often because warm air enters more easily when the door is opened. You'll find that many upright freezers have a single outer door and several inner doors which help cut down on warm air entering the freezer.

The chest on top opening freezers are more economical to run. If you're very short, you may find it hard to reach packages at the bottom of the freezer. Wire baskets make it convenient to organize and remove the food, but they take up space.

Separate Freezing Unit
A freezer with a separate freezing compartment is a wise choice when much food is to be frozen at one time.

Now if you're wondering where to locate your home freezer, here are a few things you'll want to check. To keep operation costs low, the freezer needs a clean, cool, well-ventilated room where it will be out of direct sunlight. It's not a good idea to use valuable kitchen space. High humidity may affect the finish of the freezer and cause cabinets to sweat and rust. Lid doors to stick, and frost to gather rapidly. Dampness may also damage the motor, motor supports, and springs.

Be sure the floor is strong enough to support the weight of the freezer. It's important to provide the freezer with an individual electric circuit. Choose a place to locate it where there will be enough space at the back, top, and sides of the freezer for good air circulation around it.

Marksmanship Funds Boosted

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—Shades of Davy Crockett, H-bombs, guided missiles and jet aircraft took a back seat in the often-conservative Senate Appropriations Committee—for the moment.

The committee has voted $1,700,000 to improve the marksmanship of the nation's men. This is 17 times the $100,000 recommended in President Eisenhower's budget and more than six times the funds voted by the House.

The probable explanation: Chairman Hayden (D-Ariz.) of the purchasing committee was a crack shot before he was elected to Congress—in 1907-11.

Householders Advised To Use Right Cleaner For Wallpaper To Obtain The Best Results

IF WALLS IN your house are papered and in need of cleaning then choose the kind of cleaner suited to the wallpaper. That's a tip from Sanna Black, Penn State home management extension specialist.

Water-sensitive papers require putty-like commercial cleaners. You roll the cleaner into a ball, then start at the ceiling. Use sweeping strokes and overlap each stroke. Knead the cleaner as you clean, folding in the soil. You can use stale bread in the same way but first remove the crust from the bread.

If you know what caused the spot, you can spot-clean water-sensitive wallpaper. Art gum may remove some light finger marks. You'll find art gum in wallpaper and paint stores or in book and paper supply stores. As for radiator smudges, wallpaper cleaner or a dry rubber sponge will take them off. A thick paste of Fuller's earth and carbon tetrachloride is good for grease and oil spots. Spread the paste sparingly over the spot, let it dry and brush off.

Plastic Wallpaper
For water-resistant or plastic-coated wallpaper, you can wash it lightly with a side of a mild non-abrasive detergent and lukewarm water. Use long strokes, working gently. Rinse with clear water.

When washing wallpaper, start at the baseboard and work toward the ceiling. This prevents streaks from water running down the wall. To keep wallpaper looking clean and new longer, dust it periodically with vacuum cleaner attachments. And when washing woodwork, protect the paper with a cardboard.

When buying new wallpaper, ask the salesman about the water resistance of it before you buy. But if paper is already on the wall, you can check its water resistance if you use a damp cloth to test a small area in a place that's not easily seen.

Henning Urges Farmers To Raise Cattle

HARRISBURG, June 16 (AP)—The brightest prospect in Pennsylvania's farm future may be in beef production because of a two-way increase in meat consumption.

Dr. William L. Henning, state secretary of agriculture, said Pennsylvania is ideally suited to cattle production and would stand to gain considerably by cashing in on expected future increases in meat consumption.

Beef use is up because of two factors — more population and greater per capita consumption. The national average beef consumption now is about 80 pounds per person a year. It is expected to increase slightly during 1955. In 1953 the previous all-time high for beef consumption—set in 1909—was broken at 77 pounds. Population is soaring.

Turn To Beef

"The logical thing to do is to turn to beef production," Henning said.

"We have the soil, the transportation and the markets," he added. Henning said "There is no question we could boost our beef production tremendously."

He said the current goal should be for the state to produce about three million beef cattle a year.

Of course, part of the meat consumption in the nation is made up of pork and other meats.

However, the fact remains, Henning noted, that beef is a major factor in the nation's eating habits. Last year, when pork prices were high, beef picked up an edge in consumption. This year pork prices have fallen again, but it is too early to tell whether this will cut into or supplement the beef consumption.

Poultry Short Course

Poultry production will be the subject of a five-day short course at Pennsylvania State University, beginning Aug. 22.

In the short course the latest information will be available to poultrymen and all the facilities of the university will be made available to the program.

Instruction for the course will be furnished by members of the poultry department in the college of agriculture and by college extension poultry staff specialists.

Interested poultrymen can get information on the course from their county agents or by writing directly to the director of short courses at the university.

Revise Standards

The U. S. Agriculture Department has revised its standards for grades of slaughter barrows and gilts and barrow and gilt carcasses. The changes are in grade names and back fat thickness requirements.

The new standards, effective July 5, discontinue the use of the word "choice" in names of federal grades for the first three grades.

The department said it changed the grades to aid in reflecting consumer demand for pork back to producers by identifying differences in yields of lean cuts and of fat cuts as well as differences in quality of cuts.

The grades provide—U. S. No. 1: a high ratio of lean meat to fat; U. S. No. 2: slightly fatter than necessary to produce high quality pork; U. S. No. 3: hogs decidedly overfat with a low proportion of lean meat to fat; medium: hogs with little of the desirable meat features, such as fat marbling; cull: hogs which produce cuts of inferior quality.

Broiler Chick Placements Lag

HARRISBURG, June 16—Placement of broiler chicks on Pennsylvania farms by hatcherymen of the State continued downward during the week ended June 4, the State Department of Agriculture announced today.

Total placements amounted to 687,000 chicks to be raised as broilers and fryers. This compares with the 743,000 placed a week previous and is two per cent below the average of 698,600 for the preceding 10 weeks.

The weekly survey indicated a total hatch of 1,066,000 chicks of which 802,000 were for broilers and 264,000 were for flock replacements. Broiler chick shipments to other States totaled 216,000. In-shippments were 101,000.

THE GREEN THUMB:

Wormy Radish Controls; Narcissus, Peony Blight; Color Pots With Crayon

RADISH NOTES: If you've been having wormy radishes, then you'll be interested in a tip passed along to us from a reader of this department. She writes: "For years all the radishes we grew had worms in them. But now we have a trick that keeps the worms out. We soak the seed in kerosene overnight before planting and it does a great job in preventing wormy radishes." Several of our friends put wood ashes over the seed at sowing time and it does a good job in preventing worm radishes.

You still have time to sow radishes and try these tricks. For continuous harvest, you can sow every two weeks right up until September 1st. Uniform sowing 1/2 inch deep, and 1/2 inch apart will give you plants that need no thinning. A packet will sow about 25 feet of row.

Blossom Blight
Daffs and Peonies: The Green Thumb has been receiving many letters asking us what to do for narcissus and peony plants which did not bloom this year. In most cases, botrytis blight has been responsible for non-blooming of bulbous plants and peonies. As we've mentioned before, this trouble is due to a gray mold organism which causes the buds to blast rather than develop.

Control: Just as soon as the foliage dies down, cut off the tops and burn. Spray or drench the area with captan, and next spring, just as soon as new growth starts, spray with Captan. Botrytis is easier to lick before it starts than it is after infection sets in.

Another cause for non-blooming of bulbs is infrequent transplanting. They should be dug and separated at least every 3 years. Another reason for failure to bloom is hot, dry winds. A mulch of sawdust or peatmoss will conserve moisture and help prevent this type of damage to bulbous crops.

African Violets

African Violets: A friend of ours who does not like to use paraffin on the edge of his pots (draws mold, she tells us) has had good luck coloring her clay pots with ordinary school crayons. Just go over the outside of the pot with the flat side of the crayon, with heavier application on the rim area.

The crayon leaves a waxy finish and seals the pot to some extent, so that she has to water less often. You can also melt a few different colors together and get a marbled effect. The waxy coating sticks to the pots, has no harmful effects on plant growth. The coat of crayon wax on the rim does a lot to prevent petiole rot, a common complaint among violet fans whose leaf stems touch or rest on the edge.

Full Program Of Activities Announced For Dairy Days

THE PENNSYLVANIA STATE University promises to be a focal point of interest for farm people of the state July 28 and 29 on the occasion of the second annual Dairy Days, according to County Agent A. E. Ifft.

The two-day program has been arranged to offer the place, facilities and activities around which farm groups of men and women can plan their annual visit to the university. Many of them may use the occasion to arrange group meetings, summer picnics, committee meetings, and tour at Penn State in conjunction with the Dairy Days. Facilities will be available to accommodate any size group, as well as all individuals who wish to attend.

This year, in addition to the usual agricultural events, the Dairy Days will include a home economics program for farm women. This has been arranged cooperatively with the College of Home Economics.

Panel Discussion

Some of the highlights of Dairy Days: Rooms will be available in the dormitories; lunch in the new Hetzel Union Cafeteria; poultry barbecue in Hort Woods, 6 p.m., July 28; panel discussion, "The Effects of State and Federal Milk Control in Pennsylvania," 8 p.m., July 28.

Also, educational agricultural and home economics exhibits; tours of the famous Penn State flower gardens; tours of agronomy research plots on grass and farming and seed varieties; commercial machinery exhibit on making high quality roughage; mobile milk ring-test laboratory; research in progress on cold wall tanks.

A steering committee of extension and research personnel in agriculture and home economics and representatives of the dairy industry is responsible for arrangements. The committee anticipates that a large group of farm people will attend from each county. Dairy Days are being sponsored by the Pennsylvania Dairyman's Association with the university cooperating.

For beetles only rotenone laos may be used as a 1 per cent dust, or spray with 5-tablespoons of 4 to 5 per cent strength per gallon of water.

Adults of the Mexican beetles are about one-fourth inch long and copper colored with 16 black spots on the wings. Both adults and the fuzzy, orange-colored larva feed on the leaves and green pods.

Leafhoppers, small light-green, and wedge-shaped, feed on the leaves. With either pest, insecticides should be directed at the undersides of the leaves, Ifft emphasizes.

Area Winner To Vie For State Honors

MISS JOAN GOULD, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Gould of Effort, will represent Monroe County in the Poultry Queen Contest for Northeast Pennsylvania.

The selection of the poultry queen will take place on Saturday, July 16th at Tunkhannock. Miss Gould is being sponsored by the Monroe County Poultry Producers Association.

The winner of this contest will compete in a state-wide contest for the title of Poultry Queen at Hershey on August 27.

In addition to the regional contest, the annual meeting of the Northeast Pennsylvania Poultry Producers Inc. will be held. A poultry barbecue will be served by this organization that night.

Tickets may be bought from officers of the Poultry Association who are: James T. Ogden, president; Elmer Veely, vice president; F. L. Wilmoth, treasurer; Carl Michaels, W. C. Wicks and Omar Michaels, or from the Agricultural Extension Office in the Post Office Building, Stroudsburg.

Good Poultry Range Will Save On Feed

POULTRYMEN who have established good ladino clover or blue grass ranges for their pullets are well pleased with results, report County Agent A. E. Ifft. He explains that ranges of this type, if properly managed, will help to cut feed costs.

To obtain maximum benefits from ranges, avoid overpopulation. Well established ladino clover ranges will carry 800 to 1000 pullets to the acre during good growing seasons. Usually, 500 pullets per acre is a better average number. Bluegrass ranges usually can carry only about one-half this number of birds. Over-population is particularly hard on a range during dry, hot weather.

Ladino clover makes rapid growth under favorable weather conditions. Frequent clipping may be necessary if it is growing faster than the pullets can utilize it. Clipping encourages new, tender, succulent growth.

Frequent moving of feeders, and waterers will aid in preventing the development of bare spots on the range. It is not advisable to move range shelters. If this is done, there will be a bare spot every place the shelter has been placed. When it becomes necessary to clean under the shelter, move it a short distance so as to facilitate cleaning and then return it to its original location.

Town Room Opens Today;
Caters To Private Parties

"THE TOWN ROOM," newest addition to the Town Tavern, will be opened today.

A spacious, beautifully decorated room 28 by 48, the Town Room will cater largely to private parties, banquets, wedding breakfasts and dinner parties.

The decor is in keeping with the plans that Stanley Siproth and John (Whitey) Zerner, managers of Town Tavern, have for the room.

Completely air conditioned, the room is arranged for complete comfort and seclusion for parties. Colors are soft, draperies attractive and lighting has been arranged to show the decor of the room to advantage.

A piano and electric organ have been installed to provide music for various occasions.

Entrance to the "Town Room" is so arranged that parties move directly to the room without being required to go through the Town Tavern bar, or spacious dining room.

The modern Town Tavern kitchen and expert staff of chefs are conveniently located to give all types of food service to users of the room. A competent staff of bartenders will serve the Town Room clientele's beverage desires.

IN A CONTEST opened to business-managed electric companies throughout the world, Pennsylvania Power & Light Company's 1954 annual report to shareholders received the top award for utilities of 400,000 customers and over at the 23rd annual convention of the Edison Electric Institute yesterday in Los Angeles. The citation is determined on the basis of "effectively illustrating, humanizing and simplifying the story of the company's operations in a way that every reader will understand."

The award was received by E. L. Palmer, P. P. & L.'s public relations vice president and chairman of the company's annual report committee. This raises to 20 the awards which P. P. & L. reports have won in the past ten years.

The judges of the contest, nationally prominent in utility and financial circles were Fischer S. Black, editor, Electrical World; Merryle Rukeyser, economic analyst and financial writer; and Harold H. Young, partner in Eastman Dillon & Co.

CLAUDE CYPHERS, of Stroudsburg, was host to his employees and their wives and friends at a combined banquet and safety meeting held at the Reeder's Community Hall. A chicken dinner, prepared by members of the Women's Society of the Reeder's Methodist Church, was served.

Verdon Frailey, acting as master of ceremonies, opened the meeting with prayer and introduced the main speaker, Glenn E. Zehner, field underwriter for the Farm Bureau Insurance Co. He spoke on "Safety," stressing regulations to help drivers operate their vehicles in the safest manner. Mr. Cyphers also spoke briefly.

Awards were presented to five of the truck drivers working for Mr. Cyphers who had accident-free driving records for the past year. Presentations were made by Mr. Zehner to Paul Miller, Ivan Adams, Francis Merwine and Walter L. Stauffer. William Dorshimer was unable to be present to receive his award in person.

Movies, several comics and two on safety were shown. A social time followed.

Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Harold LaBar, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Miller, Mr. and Mrs. James Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Walter L.

Marion Booth Is Bride Of A. W. Stevens

The Middle Smithfield Presbyterian Church was the scene of the pretty Spring wedding of Miss Marion Louise Booth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Booth of East Stroudsburg RD 1, to Arthur William Stevens Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Stevens of 1235 Highland St., Oberlin.

Rev. David C. Newquist performed the ceremony and Douglas Gordon was organist and Durrell Mader, soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of Chantilly lace over white satin, fashioned with a fitted bodice, long tapered sleeves, a wide neckline edged in sequins topped by a Peter Pan collar. The bouffant skirt was of white satin with an overskirt of illusion net with wide lace panel inserts. Her elbow-length veil of illusion net cascaded from a ruffled net bandeau trimmed with sequins. She carried a bouquet of lily of the valley and white carnations.

Mrs. Helen Sirola was matron of honor. She wore a pale blue gown of crystallette with long torso bodice, full skirt and wide, off-the-shoulder neckline with bow and streamers down the back, carried a colonial bouquet with a touch of blue.

Bridesmaids were: Mrs. Jean Booth, sister-in-law of the bride, and Miss Patricia Peck, cousin of the bridegroom. Their gowns, yellow and pink respectively, were fashioned like the matron-of-honors as were the colonial bouquets with a touch of yellow or pink to match their gowns.

Lillian Marie George, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a dress of white ruffled nylon tulle and carried a miniature colonial bouquet.

Leonard Rife, of Oberlin was best man, John Stevens, brother of the bridegroom, and Charles Booth, brother of the bride, were ushers.

A reception was held at Regina Hotel before Mr. and Mrs. Stevens left for a wedding trip through the New England states and Canada. After their return they spent a few days in the Poconos with the bride's parents and are now making their home at 76 Shope St., Oberlin.

Scout Caravan Spends Night At Rockland, Me.

Rockland, Maine—Marie Cohen, today's correspondent for the Senior Girl Scouts and Explorer Post, Boy Scouts of Monroe County, wrote Tuesday of the second day's journey for the group, enroute by bus for Nova Scotia.

"We left the Southbury Training School about 9:30 after breakfast at a nearby diner. We then had to go back to the school to pick up Mike who was completely recovered.

"We traveled toward Boston but did not go into the city, but turned toward the north and traveled about two hours on a lovely super-highway, similar to the Pennsylvania Turnpike. We stopped at a diner for lunch near Auburn, Mass.

"We continued north into Maine and are now in Rockland. We ate dinner at a restaurant at about 8 p. m. We should get to the spot where we are to drop the boys by tomorrow night. We had a songfest on the bus this afternoon, led by Jim Ifft and the uke.

"We are sleeping tonight in the Congregational Church basement."

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

The more things change, the more they are the same. Take the Laurel Tea of the Garden Club, for instance. Years ago it was the Rose Tea but somehow by the third Thursday in June the roses were either all gone or hadn't bloomed yet. So they changed it to the Laurel Tea.

So at the Laurel Tea yesterday they had an expert on iris, roses and peonies with never a word about laurel. Of course, no words could do justice to laurel, anyway. At this season of the year I never ride the Laurel Circle without thinking of Lou McFall's song "When the laurel foam is breaking on the crest of Pocono." Laurel does break like foam, too.

You can very easily have a Laurel Tea without mentioning laurel. You can also play in a golf tournament without playing golf, sometimes, too. Croquet was the game some of us were playing yesterday on the golf course, but it was fun, anyway.

I hope that the bugs didn't bother the gardeners as much as they were bothering the golfers. Whether it's the weather, the season, or just our age, but the little gnats do seem to be more plentiful right now than I ever remember.

And speaking of remembering, I hope I can remember all of the errands for the weekend tomorrow. And I'd advise you to do the same. With the fireman's parade on Saturday, I doubt if a tank battalion could battle its way either into or out of either town.

Garden Tips In Speech At Laurel Tea

Harold Anthony, of Elushing, L. I. who has a summer home at Anacomink was the guest speaker at the annual Laurel Tea of the Monroe County Garden Club held yesterday afternoon at LaBar's Rhododendron Nursery. Mr. Anthony, whose gardening is a very successful hobby, won a blue ribbon and tri-color award at the Flushing Rose Show; the highest award, a silver bowl and tri-color award at the Iris Show, where he also won 10 blue ribbons out of a possible 12.

His topic was "Iris, Peonies and Roses," and he gave many helpful tips. Iris, he said, should be moved every three years in July or August and fertilized with bonemeal and super-phosphate, not manure.

The foliage of peonies should be cut back after the first frost, he advised, and cut beneath the surface of the ground. When cutting peonies for bouquets, he advocated cutting only three or four from each bush to make for better foliage and flowers the next year. Peonies, too, should be fertilized in the Fall with commercial fertilizer and in February with bonemeal, never with manure.

This climate is not too good for hybrid roses, he said, but that floribundas do fairly well.

Anthony was introduced by Mrs. Edward Knoby, program chairman. Mrs. David Shiffer opened the meeting with a welcome to the members and guests. Frank LaBar extended the welcome for the Nursery staff.

As each guest arrived at the meeting, she was presented with an American pillar rose by three small granddaughters of members: Miss Susan Stevens of Pittsburgh, granddaughter of Mrs. Oscar Liljenstein, and Jiff and Jane Hirt, twin granddaughters of Mrs. Judson Lee.

Mrs. A. H. Mathieson had arranged many specimen roses on display, brought in by the members. The speakers table and tea table were decorated with laurel centerpieces, arranged by Mrs. Francis Grover and Mrs. Edward Rahn.

The tea committee served punch and cookies. Mrs. Edwin Treible and Miss Fannie Swarts-welder poured. Other members of the committee were Mrs. Russell Harmon, Mrs. John Glasson, Miss Lucie Girard, Mrs. Walter Stanard, and Mrs. Ralph Mook.

The group plans a rummage sale early in the Fall.

Observers Have Expected Blow-Up In Argentina For Years; Army Appears Loyal

Students of Latin-American affairs have been wondering for years just when Argentina would "blow."

First they thought it would come when Dictator Peron revolutionized the country's economy, clamping down on the wealthy cattle breeders, planters, business men and industrialists.

He has always made his pitch to labor, taking advantage of discontent over low wages, which he ordered raised, and of anticlericalism among the workers.

Aided by Wife

But, with the aid of his late wife Evita, who created numerous government-financed foundations and the like to aid the working class, he beat off the counterattack of what he called the oligarchy. The clincher came when he proclaimed a government monopoly of exports. Under this plan, he fixed prices for the nation's products lower than those of world markets and the government pocketed the difference.

Argentina had ruffled the feathers of the United States during the war with a soft attitude toward Nazi Germany, and followed through after the war with a similar attitude toward Communist Russia. There were times when an open break appeared imminent.

About this time evidence began to appear that Peron was working on a grandiose scheme to take both political and economic hegemony over all South America, or at least those countries which were close neighbors of Argentina and not tied so tightly to the United States.

Then he lost the great appeal Evita had for the public through her death. Predictions that he wouldn't last long after that were rife.

Attempted New Party

His opponents were encouraged to attempt the organization of a new political party, closely kin to the heavily Catholic Christian-Democratic parties of Europe, but with distinct Socialist tinges. The Communists, although Peron pretends to despise them as of no Importance in Argentina, attempted to infiltrate this movement, though not welcomed by Catholic elements.

The dispute with the Church itself, resulting in deportation of its chief prelates from Buenos Aires, in Peron's excommunication from the church, and the military revolt which began yesterday, apparently grew out of Peron's rage at the attempt to form the new party, although no formal connection between it and the Church itself has been established.

First reports of the upheaval were too vague to give any insight on the actual forces at work.

The keystone is the army which apparently remains loyal to Peron.

Party Leader Urges Support Of Nominees

POCONO PINES — The Pocono Mountains Democratic Club heard Sheriff Jacob F. Altomose, county chairman call for solid support for every member of the Democratic ticket this coming fall.

Mr. Altomose, a candidate for re-election, cited each candidate and asked that club members work actively in behalf of their election.

Other speakers were N. Henry Fenner, candidate for prothonotary & clerk of the court; Floyd Butz, candidate for register & recorder; William L. Quick and John Lesoine, candidates for county commissioner.

Sheriff Altomose spoke in behalf of Attorney Detleff A. Hansen, candidate for district attorney who was unable to attend.

By-laws were read. Copies will be sent to all members before coming up for adoption.

Club members decided to have a picnic or clambake in July and obtain a speaker from Harrisburg to discuss Gov. Leader's tax program.

Dr. W. R. Erickson will be away from his office June 15 to 20, inclusive.—Adv.
